

I plan to make my project have the same visuals, but two different audio tracks. I aim for a simple and poetic film. The subject will be laying on their couch and scrolling through social media on their phone. The cuts will make clear what the subject is doing, but the soundscapes will make the audience feel different. The first audio will be more peaceful for the subject, they are doing an activity they like to relax with room tone and the audio from their phone. The second audio will feel more suffocating for the subject, they are doing an activity to escape the outside, as there will be muted/distorted background noise that includes vehicle sounds, overlapping people talking,

Week 13 (November 25, Monday) Update #1: Past date already.

Week 14 (December 2, Monday) Update #2: I plan to be caught up in other assignments and to film my project. I will send an email to communicate about late work and to share my footage. Based on feedback, I will make my adjustments. While waiting for feedback, I will start the basic coding for the html.

Week 15 (December 9, Monday) Update #3: I plan to have made my updates and to complete the editing. I will then continue to test and fix the coding for the html.
